HOME LEARNING

Look at the example below.

Immediately, Seb turned his back to the ocean and ran. With tears in his eyes, he stumbled over the rubbish and fell, straight into his Dad.

"Seb? Hey, Seb, what's the matter buddy?"

Composing himself, Seb began to explain. Everything he had been thinking came tumbling out whilst his dad held him and listened. As he did, an idea began to form in Seb's mind.

"Dad, can we go see Uncle Eddie? Now. We need to go now!"

As they walked back to the car, Seb's idea began to grow. It would need some fine tuning but Seb was confident it would work – biodegradable bottles. For everything. Shampoo, drinks, cleaning products, the list was endless. His Uncle Eddie worked for a manufacturing company who made biodegradable food bags. Surely there would be a way of strengthening that material and shaping it?

Over the next few months, Seb spent every spare moment he could with his Uncle Eddie. Together, they suffered setback after setback until one day when they finally produced a product that not only held its shape but was biodegradable, right down to the lid.
