The Lady of Shallot is a narrative poem written in 1832.

This poem was written around the time of the Bronte sisters.

It is based on the Arthurian legend of Elaine of Astolat. In the 19th Century, medival legends (such as King Arthur and the knights of the round table) were very popoular.

The poem is divided into 4 parts. We are going to look at parts 1 and 2 in reading this week. In part 1 and 2, the Lady of Shalott sits in a castle overlooking a river which flows to Camelot. She is cursed never to look directly out into the world, but instead must observe the comings and goings from the Arthurian court through a mirror and weave on her loom the scenes she sees.
