Year 6 PSHE Relationships Summer 1

What will change as we become more independent?

How do friendships grow and change?

talk

we do

Recap:

What types of different relationships can people have?

LO: to explain that adults can choose to be part of a committed relationship or not, including marriage or civil partnership

we do

What is meant by being part of a committed relationship?

LO: to explain that adults can choose to be part of a committed relationship or not, including marriage or civil partnership

I do

Commitment means doing what needs to be done regardless of your talents or your mood. Even if you are sad, mad, tired or something better comes along you still need to follow through on a commitment.

When you're in a committed relationship, both of you are all in. You work as a team, and you're both expressing your love for each other every time you're together. It means thinking about how you can make this person happy, and what you can do to grow as a couple and consistently improve your relationship. A committed relationship involves love, trust, honesty and openness.

Forms of committed relationships include close friendship, long-term relationships, engagement, marriage and civil partnerships.

It is your choice to be in committed relationship.

LO: to explain that adults can choose to be part of a committed relationship or not, including marriage or civil partnership

I do

SOMETIMES COUPLES WILL DECIDE TO LEGALLY (AND SOMETIMES RELIGIOUSLY) UNITE IN A MARRIAGE OR CIVIL PARTNERSHIP.

Marriage and Civil Partnership are very similar. They both legally unite a couple in the eyes of the law which gives them certain privileges and protection.

Similarities:

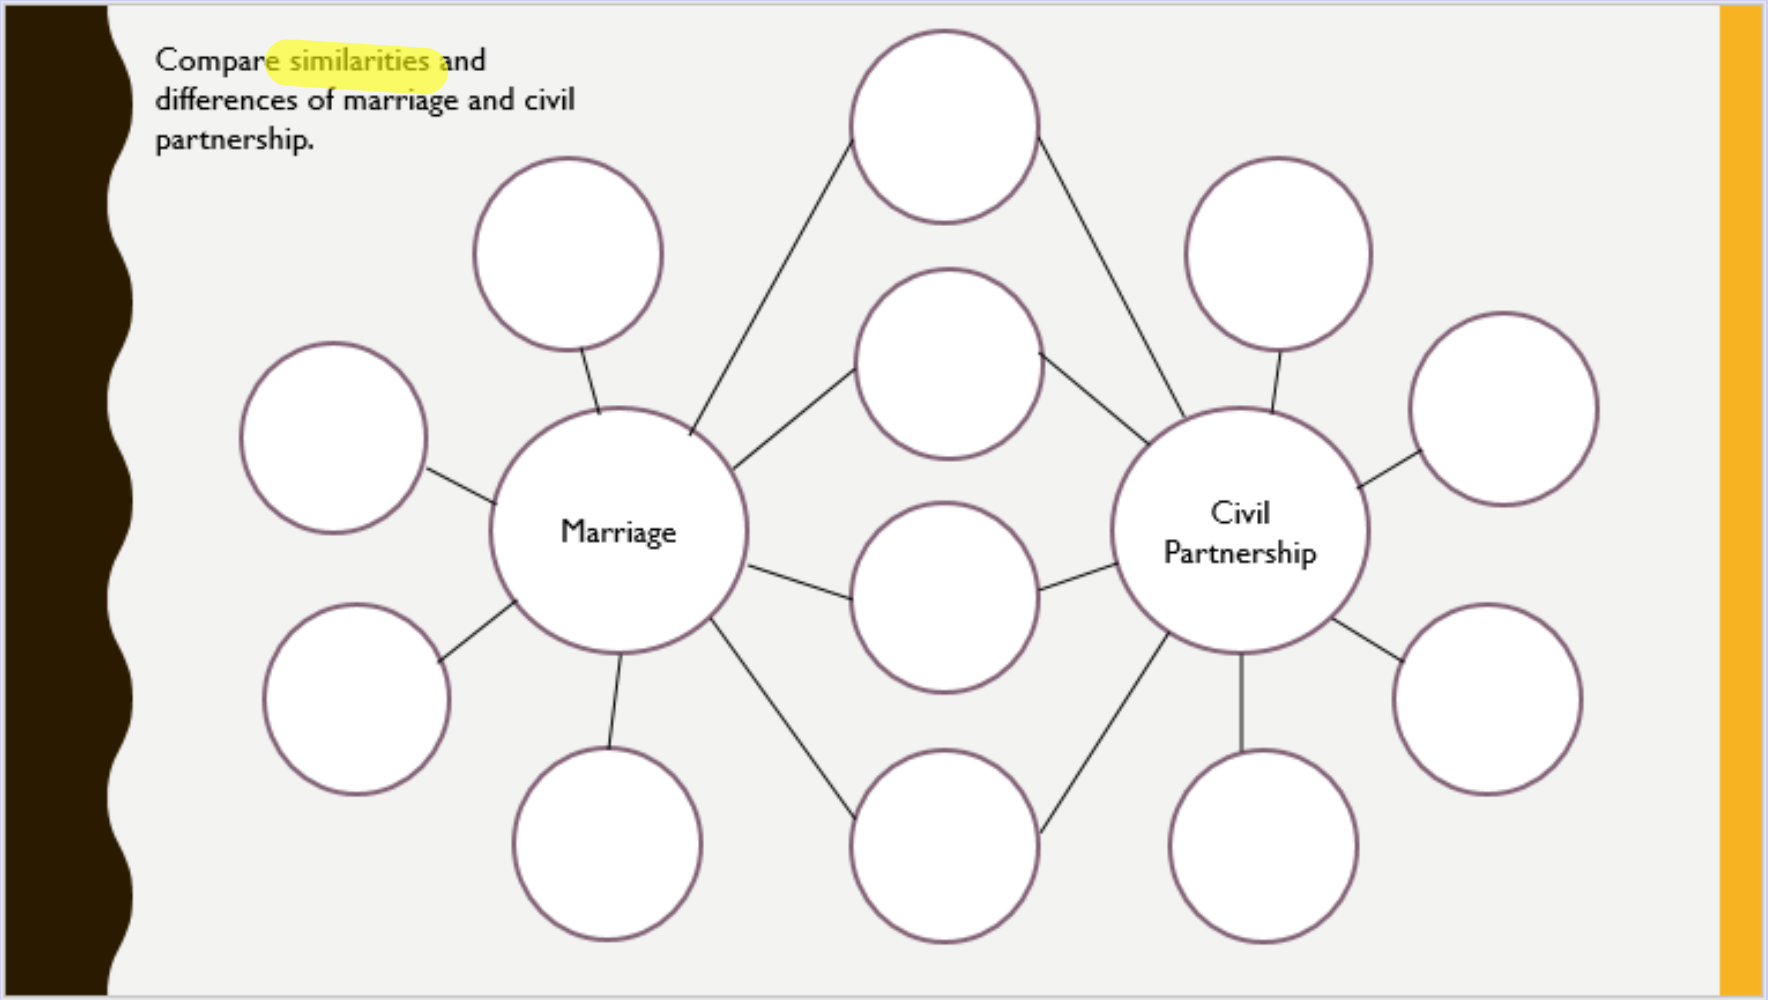

- Acquire parental responsibilities of children.
- Next of kin rights (they will inherit your property when you pass away for example, unless their will states otherwise).
- They would inherit life insurance money.
- United in the eyes of the law.
- Your partner has the right to live with you.
- You must be in both for 12 months before legally ending it.
- Both are usually intended to be life-long partnerships.

Differences:

- Civil partnerships were created in 2004 for same sex couples but in 2019 it was also an option for straight couples.
- Marriage only became legal for same sex couples in 2013.
- Marriage is often linked to religion whereas civil partnership is secular (non-religious).
- Weddings are more common with marriage.
- People in civil partnerships cannot call themselves 'married'.
- The certificates contain different information.
- Ending a marriage is called divorce, ending a civil partnership is called dissolution.
- Adultery (cheating on a partner) cannot be a reason to dissolve a Civil Partnership.

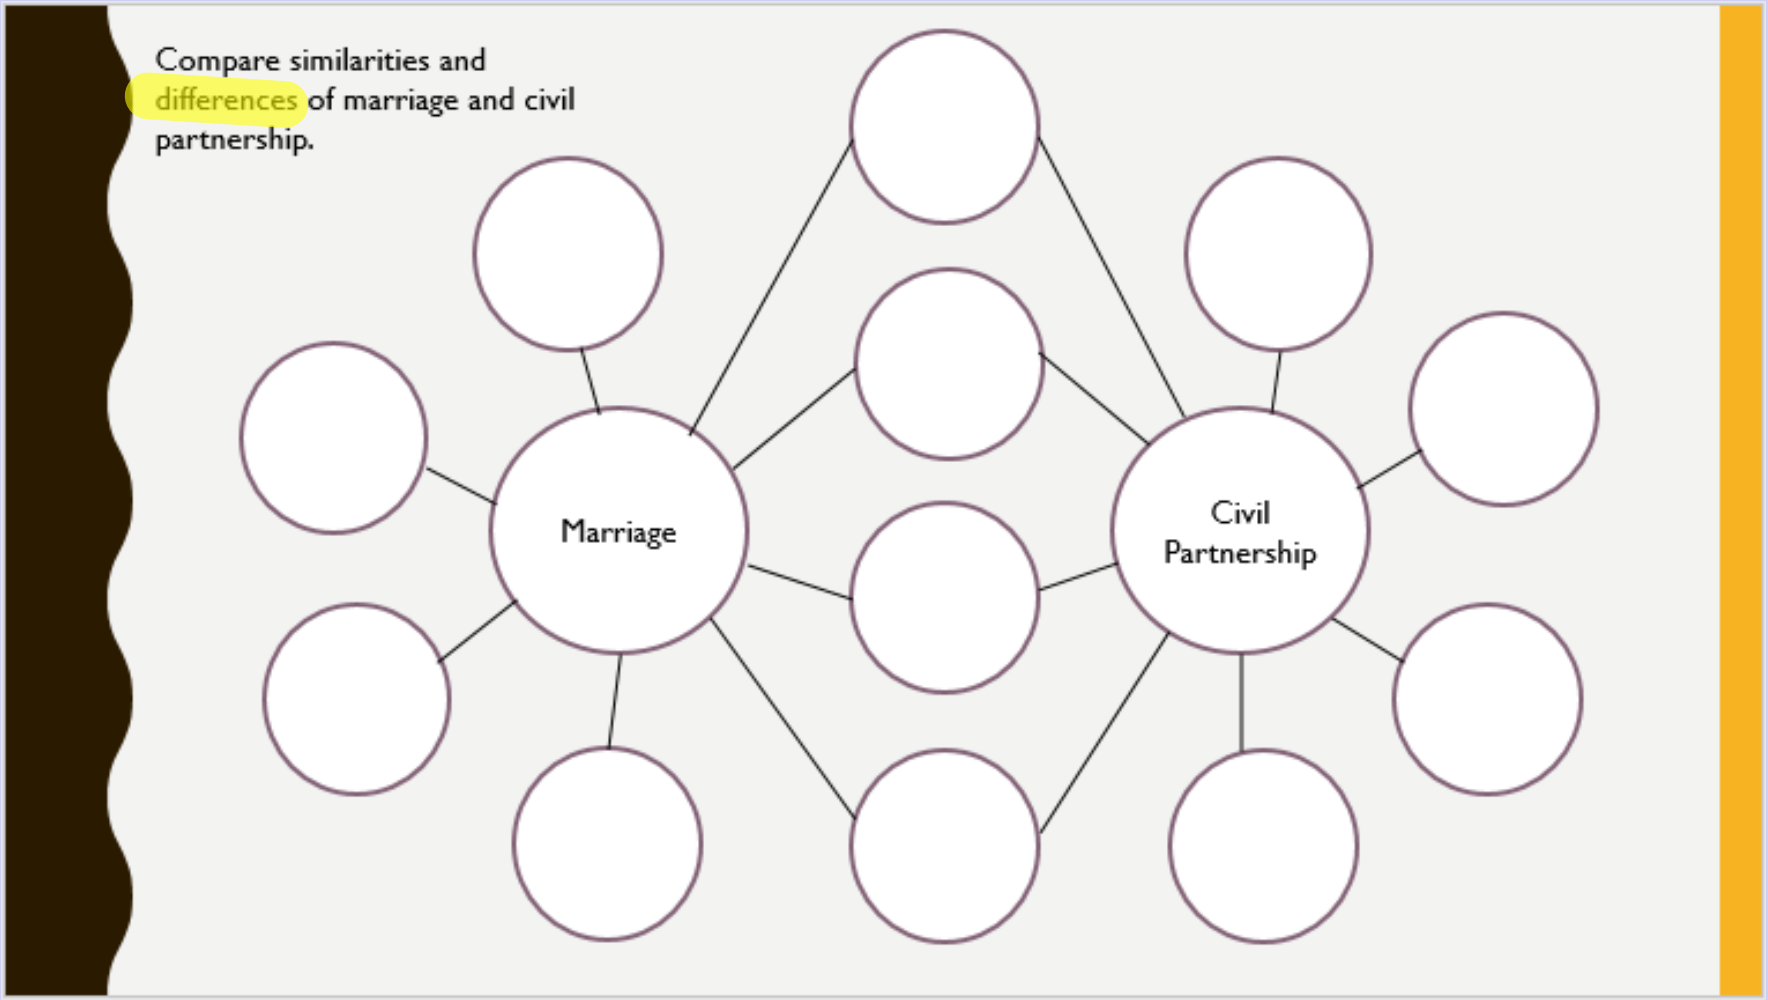

LO: to explain that adults can choose to be part of a committed relationship or not, including marriage or civil partnership

I do

LO: to explain that adults can choose to be part of a committed relationship or not, including marriage or civil partnership

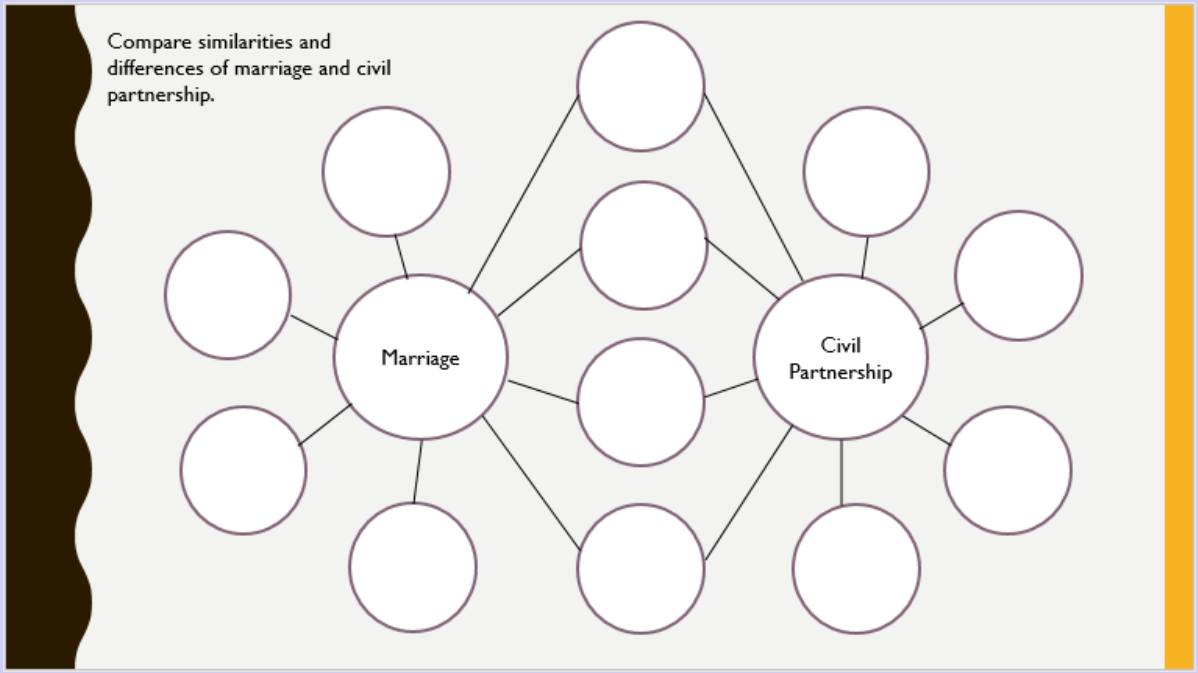

we do

LO: to explain that adults can choose to be part of a committed relationship or not, including marriage or civil partnership

you do

Use the information from slide 6 to complete the table.

LO: to explain that adults can choose to be part of a committed relationship or not, including marriage or civil partnership

we do

What is a committed relationship? What should a committed relationship be like?

Name a similarity between a marriage and a civil partnership.

Name a difference between a marriage and a civil partnership.