Conflict resolution

LO: To understand and recognise conflict and how to resolve it.

Aim

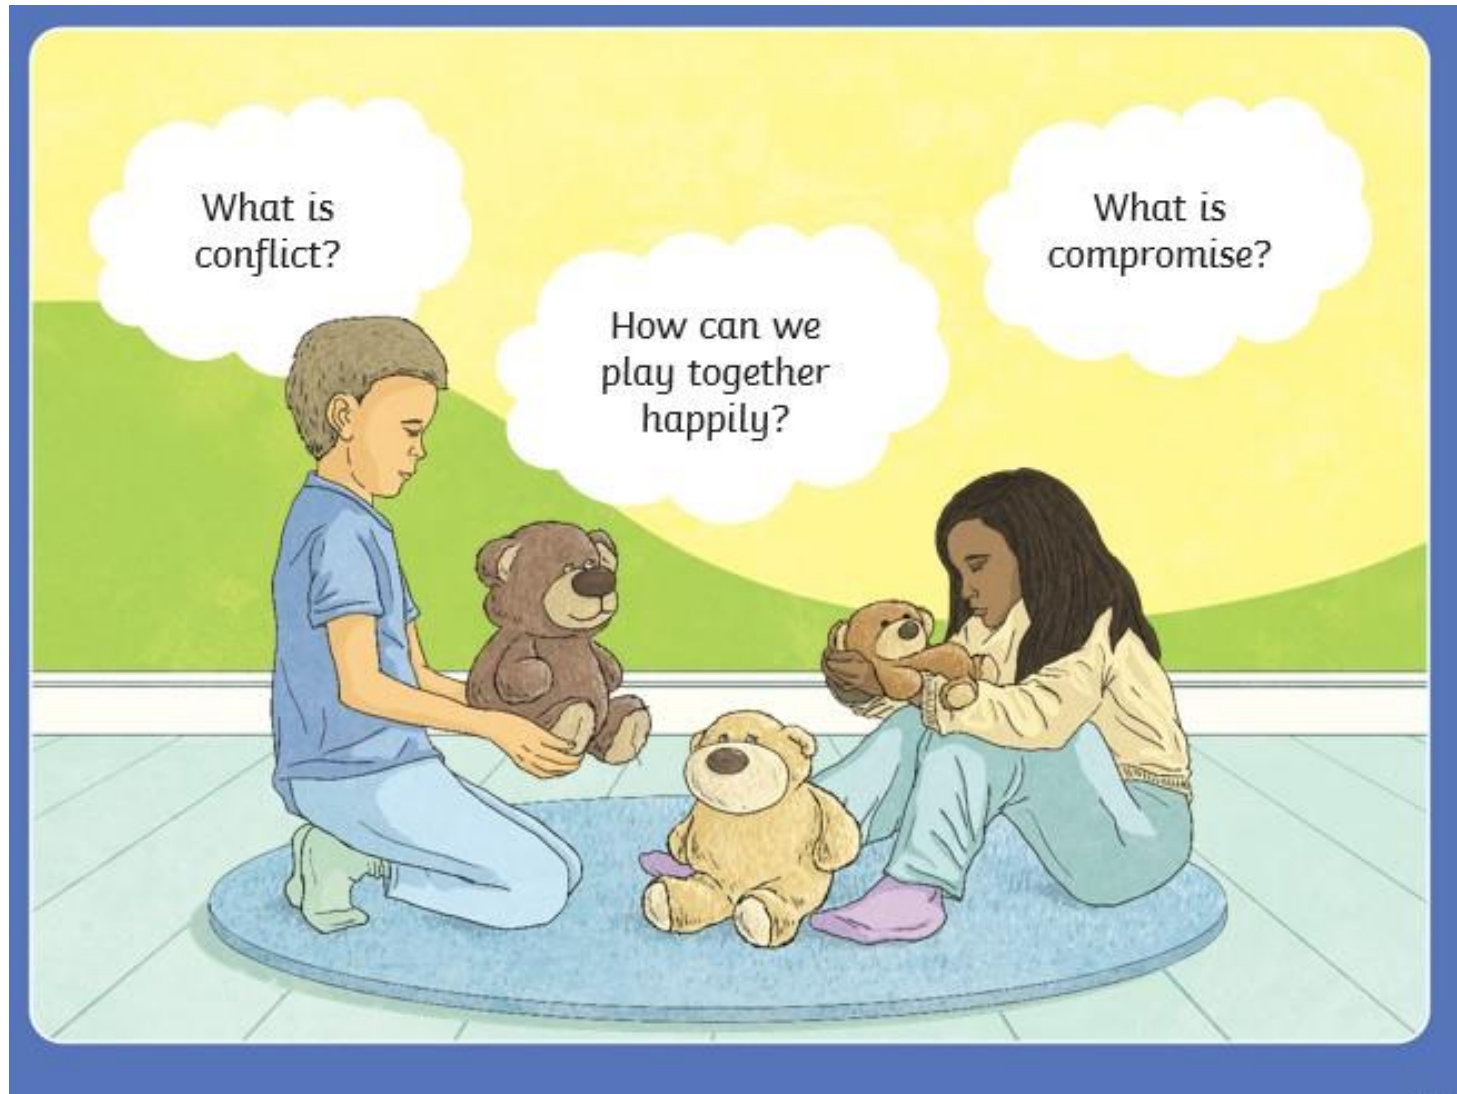

- I can recognise how my behaviour affects other people and I can develop strategies to support and improve relationships.

Success Criteria

- I can understand that people sometimes want different things.
- I can talk about problems that this might cause.
- I can suggest ways to reach a compromise.

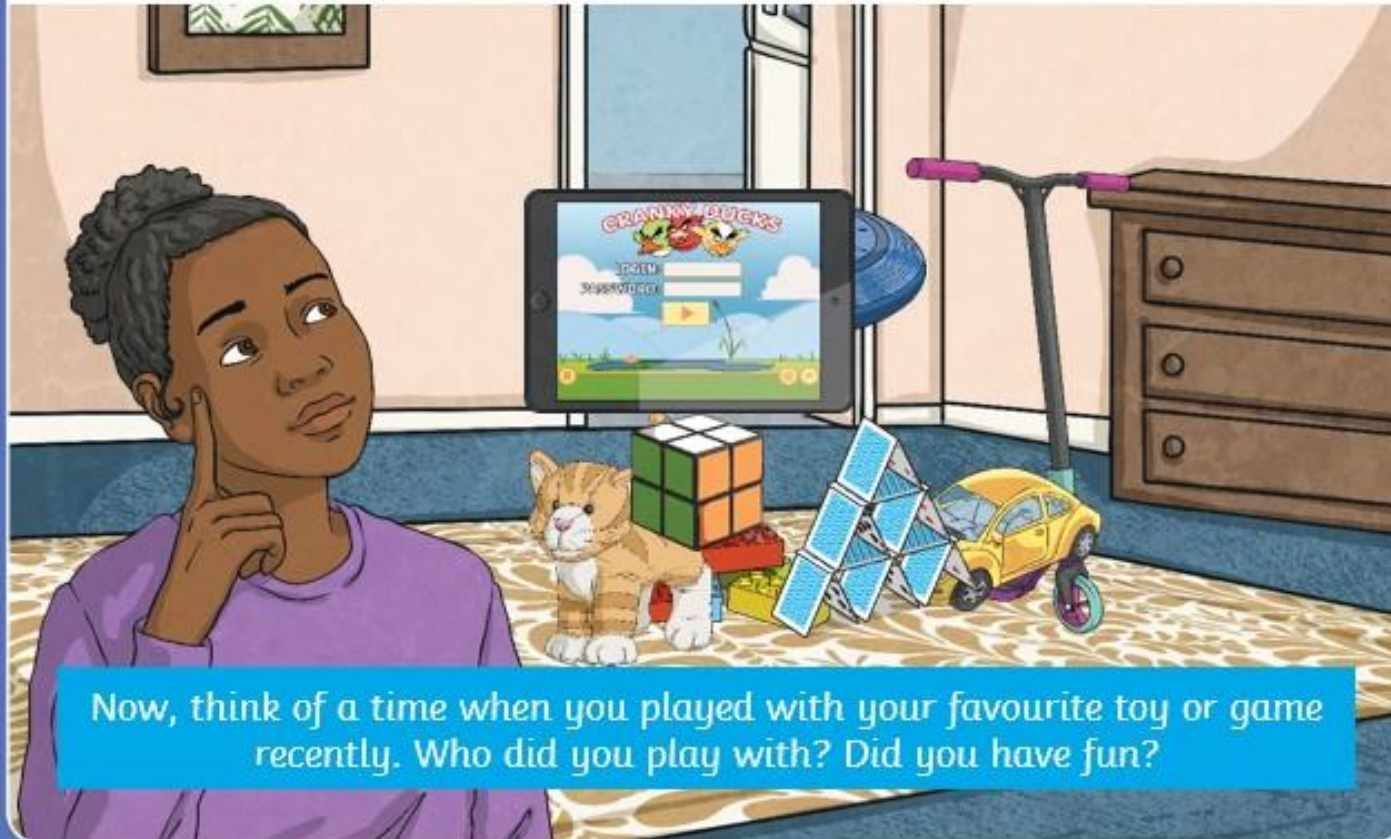

This resource is fully in line with the Learning Outcomes and Core Themes outlined in the PSHE Association's Programme of Study

What Do You like to Play?

Now, think of a time when you played with your favourite toy or game recently. Who did you play with? Did you have fun?

Ways to Play

If people enjoy playing with the same toys, they might want to play with them at the same time but in different ways. This can cause conflict.

How do you think the people in the picture feel?

Has this ever happened to you?

Ways to Play

Let's play together!

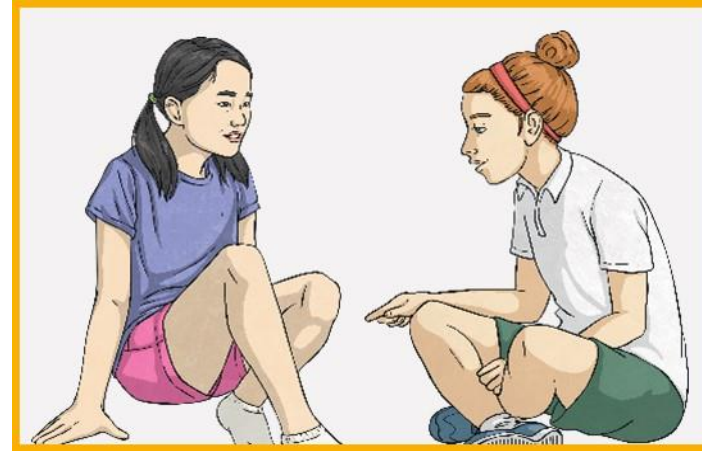

Yes, I'd like that!

Look at the picture above. How could enjoying playing with different things sometimes cause problems?

If people enjoy playing with different toys but want to play together, they might have difficulty deciding what to play. This can cause conflict.

It is really helpful to know what you enjoy playing with and to be able to tell others what you like. This way, everyone can understand what each other wants so they can play happily.

Let's think about the pictures from earlier on. What could these children have said to each other that would have made sure everyone enjoyed the playing time?

What If We Disagree?

People may have different ideas about how games should be played or which toys should be used. It is important to play fairly but also important to explain what you think should happen.

Let's Compromise!

To make sure everyone has a good time when we play, we sometimes need to compromise. Remember, this means to come to an agreement about sharing or taking turns so that everyone can play happily.

Compromise isn't just about making everyone happy.

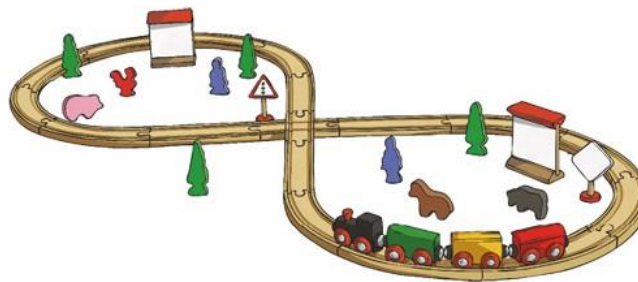

A compromise may involve sharing or taking turns.

Read the play scenario cards. What could everyone do to make sure they have a good time?

Let's Compromise!

Play Scenario Cards

Clare and Leo are playing with trains. Clare wants to break the track up and start again but Leo wants to carry on adding to the track they have already started. What could they do?

The Way We Play

Think carefully about what we have learnt about the need to compromise. Can you think of a time when you felt upset while you were playing or maybe a time when you needed to compromise?

You can now draw a picture of yourself playing something you really enjoy with someone you really like spending time with. Think about what you could do to make sure everyone has a happy time.
