What is sequencing?

Sequencing is identifying key events of a story and retelling it in the chronological order.

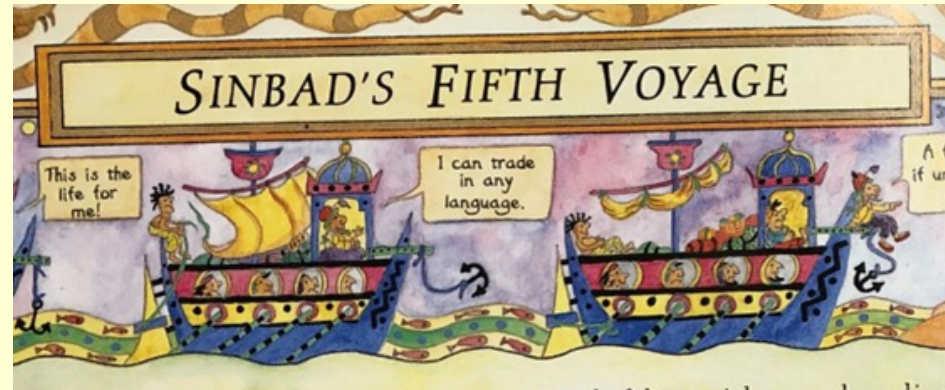

Sequencing always has a start, middle and end and uses time adverbials and time connectives (time order words)

Summary of Part one

To begin their voyage, Sinbad and ship crew left Baghdad. Then, one day, they reached an island where they found a roc egg. Not long after that, his passengers broke the egg and ate the chick. Shortly after that, the roc took its revenge by destroying their ship and killing all the crew. Consequently, Sinbad survived by climbing on a piece of wreckage and got to the beach. After that, he found an old man clad in leaves who asked him to be carried across stream. Afterwards, the old man refused to get off and forced Sinbad to carry him for weeks. Eventually, Sinbad longed for death to release him.

Summary of Part two

Firstly, Sinbad made wine from grape juice which gave him fresh vigour. Soon after, the old man drank the wine and Sinbad managed to get rid of him. A few weeks later, he found a ship and the passengers were amazed that he escaped the old man. Following that, they took him to the City of Apes where he learned how to trick monkeys to get coconuts. Sinbad traded coconuts and in time, saved enough money to return to Basra. On his way back, he hired divers to harvest pearls at the Sea of Pearls. Eventually, he returned to Baghdad a wealthy man.
