Summary of Part 1

To begin their voyage, Sinbad and ship crew left Baghdad. Then, one day, they reached an island where they found a roc egg. Not long after that, his passengers broke the egg and ate the chick. Shortly after that, the roc took its revenge by destroying their ship and killing all the crew. Consequently, Sinbad survived by climbing on a piece of wreckage and got to the beach. After that, he found an old man (clad in leaves) who asked him to be carried across stream. Afterwards, the old man refused to get off and forced Sinbad to carry him for weeks. Eventually, Sinbad longed for death to release him.

Summary

Sinbad set sail to trade but his crew stumbled upon dangerous waters. Next, Sinbad and the survivors reached a river that lit up with jewels. Not long after, Sinbad buried his remaining companions and almost killed himself, but changed his mind and sailed down the river in a homemade raft. Then, he awoke in India where the people presented him to their King, who was impressed by Sinbad's collections. Soon after, the King sent Sinbad to gift items to Caliph, who was pleased with them.

Sinbad Shortly after Sinbad decided he wanted to stay, but was ordered, from Caliph, to send gifts to the King.
