Friday 18th June 2021

LO: To use three point description to introduce a character.

What is a three point descriptive sentence?

A three point descriptive sentence is when we write a sentence that has 3 different parts to it. Each part describes something.

e.g.

The brave knight, who has long golden hair, wore silver boots and carried a shield.

What is a three point descriptive sentence?

The brave knight, who has long golden hair, wore silver boots and carried a shield.

We can split our sentence into three parts using conjunctions and commas to separate the sentence

Can we write a three point descriptive sentence about this image?

At the beginning of my story, I introduce my knight. In this, I use three point description to help my readers imagine the character.

Years passed and King Arthur's round table was still only occupied by forty nine knights. He had met every man in the land but none proved to be the knight he was searching for. One evening, whilst King Arthur was sat down for a meal with Guinevere, a knight, wearing shining, silver armour galloped into Camelot on a white horse. Climbing down from the saddle, the shining knight, who had a sharp sword on their belt, took off their helmet to revel flowing, golden hair. The knight was named Wynflaed, which means joy and beauty.

Years passed and King Arthur's round table was still only occupied by forty nine knights. He had met every man in the land but none proved to be the knight he was searching for. One evening, whilst King Arthur was sat down for a meal with Guinevere, a knight, wearing shining, silver armour galloped into Camelot on a white horse. Climbing down from the saddle, the shining knight, who had a sharp sword on their belt, took off their helmet to revel flowing, golden hair. The knight was named Wynflaed, which means joy and beauty.

Can you think about your hero, and using three point description, write a paragraph to introduce them to the story?

I do:

We do:

You do: