Add the inverted commas to the sentence below:

"Help!" I shouted. I was lost and alone. "Help! I need help!"

Let's read:

Once upon a time there lived a sister and brother who were not at all alike. In every way they were different.

The sister stayed inside on her own, reading and dreaming. The brother played outside with his friends, laughing and shouting, throwing and kicking, roughing and tumbling.

At night he slept soundly in his room. But she would lie awake, listening to the noises of the night. Sometimes he crept into her room to frighten her, for he knew that she was afraid of the dark.

Whenever they were together they fought and argued noisily. All the time.

One morning their mother grew impatient with them. "Out you go together," she said, "and try to be nice to each other just for once. And be back in time for lunch." But the boy didn't want his little sister with him.

They went to a piece of waste ground.
"Why did you have to come?" he moaned.
"It's not my fault," she said. "I didn't want to come to this awful place. It scares me."
"Oh, you baby," said her brother. "You're frightened of everything." He went off to explore.

"Hey! Come here!" he yelled a little while later. She walked over to him.
"Look!" he said. "A tunnel! Come on, let's see what's at the other end."
"N-no, you mustn't," she said. "There might be witches ... or goblins ... or anything down there."
"Don't be so wet," said her brother. "That's kid's stuff."
"We have to be back by lunchtime..." she said.

While the boy and girl were on their way to play outside, what do you think they talked about?

What do you think they said?

Task

In your book, write a short conversation between the brother and sister.

What did they say to each other while they were walking?

I DO:

"Come on! Hurry up!" the brother shouted. He was walking a few meters in front of his sister, who was scuffing her feet along the pavement, not wanting to walk much further. She complained, 'I'm tired! Can we stop for a break please? My feet hurt...' The brother rolled his eyes and sighed, then turned to face her " It's not much further now" he replied, "The secret hideout I found is just around this corner! Hurry up or you're going to make me late to meet my friends!"
