Lets Read:

Hi Duncan,

It is me black crayon and we need to talk. You make me work harder than they make any of your other crayons and it is not fair! All year long, I wear myself out drawing nice things for you. I have drawn fast cars and small animals. I have drawn people and slimy monsters. I hate being used to draw the outline of things. All the other crayons think they are better than I am because they are bright. It is not fair when you use me to draw an outline of a ball and then use all the other crayons to colour them in. How about a nice black ball instead? Is that too much to ask?

Your friend,

Black Crayon

Lets Read: Hi Duncan,
It is me red crayon and we need to talk. You make me work harder than any of the other crayons and it is not fair!

All year long, I wear myself out colouring fire engines and strawberries. I have coloured rosy red apples and butterflies. I have coloured pretty flowers and I even coloured Red Riding Hood. You even make me work in the holidays! I have to colour the Santa's at Christmas and all the hearts on Valentine 's Day! I need a long rest because I am tired. Can I go on holiday for a week?

Your overworked friend,

Red Crayon
