Wednesday 16th June
LO: To sequence and retell

TUESDAY
DAVID WIESNER

Good example of story language

Tuesday 15th June
Lo: To write the beginning of a story (Pre-assessment)

On a starless Tuesday evning a around eight o clock. A sort tempil turtle named Tarquin popped merrily on his mossy log in a reflective pond. As he lay he gazed at the moon hovering over the dark night sky. Tarquin watched and watched until he saw something he had never seen or he of before; flying frogs. He saw them zoom across the sky on their spaceships, the lily pads, they were the huge red suns of the night sky. Tarquin the astonished turtle watch them dissapere into the distance. As the glew the stars twinkled in black. Accidentally they scared the crows from there perching spot on the telephone wire. They just glew and glew and glew.

Work in groups of 4 to sequence the pictures in the correct order.
Are there different orders which would still make sense?
Now retell the story to your partner.

Take a photo for books.

Write an explanation of what you did underneath your photograph.