I do
Often, Vikings were ordinary people such as farmers, merchants and craftsmen. Their battle plan was to fight, get rich then become land owners. The fact that they were skillful, enabled them to become successful warriors. A typical warrior wore warm woolen trousers, stiff, leather shoes and a shiny, silver helmet on his head. If they were wealthier, they might have also worn a luxurious, crimson cloak around their neck as well as an ornate, silver broach. Swords were expensive so most warriors made do with a second hand one. In his hand, he would have carried a shield which would protect him in battle. One of the greatest leaders of the Viking army was Earl Halfdan. In 865, the Viking army invaded Britain.
