The Vikings most effective boat was the longship which was long, narrow and speedy. Capable of navigating both choppy seas and shallow rivers, they could travel great distances yet they were light enough to be carried on land. Clearly, the Vikings were skillful ship builders. Green timber was ideal for building longships because it is strong and durable. Usually, the sails were made of wool, the ropes from hemp and the glue was made from pine resin. How ingenious the Vikings were!

Interestingly, Vikings believed that the gods would help them if they offered sacrifices. Odin was the father of all gods and the Vikings believed he created the earth. The mighty god of war, Thor was Odin's son who fought evil giants with his magnificent, magical hammer. Adorned pendants shaped like hammers were worn around the Viking's necks to bring them good luck. When at sea, Njord, the god of the sea, could give a safe journey or a treacherous one! Additionally, an eagle-giant called Corpse Swallower could beat his wings to create storm winds.

Interestingly, magnificent, magical, ornate, Additionally,
