- To make a sound you have to hit the drum with a stick.
- Once the drum is hit, the skin of the drum will vibrate.
- When something vibrates, the particles moves very quickly.
- If you hit the drum harder the particles will move more quickly creating a louder sound.
- The particles in the gases around the drum will also start to vibrate.
- They will travel through the air as sound waves until they reach the ear.
- Sound can travel through solids, liquids and gases.
- The eardrum in the ear vibrates and sends these vibrations to three tiny bones in the ear.

Once the drum is hit, the skin of the drum will vibrate rapidly.
Interestingly, the sound can travel through solids, liquids and gases before reaching your ear.
In the ear, the eardrum sends vibrations to three tiny bones.

Do you know what sound is and how it moves quickly?
Rapidly, the drum vibrates after hitting it.
When the vibration gets to your ear, your ear drum vibrates.
Ingeniously, your ear sends a message to your clever brain because it is curious to hear the sound.
In your ear, there are 3 bones so your brain can tell what the sound is cleverly.

Surprisingly,
Interestingly,
In the ear,
As you hit the drum,
Once you hit the drum,
Rapidly,
Ingeniously,
